ABOUT THE COPS OFFICE

The Office of Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS Office) is the component of the U.S. Department of Justice responsible for advancing the practice of community policing by the nation's state, local, territorial, and tribal law enforcement agencies through information and grant resources.

The COPS Office awards grants to hire community policing professionals, develop and test innovative policing strategies, and provide training and technical assistance to community members, local government leaders, and all levels of law enforcement. Since 1994, the COPS Office has been appropriated more than $20 billion to help advance community policing.

COMMUNITY POLICING

- Community policing begins with a commitment to building trust and mutual respect between police and communities.
- It supports public safety by encouraging all stakeholders to work together to address our nation's crime challenges.
- When law enforcement and communities collaborate, they more effectively address underlying issues, change negative behavioral patterns, and allocate resources.
- To read an overview of the principles of community policing, please see the COPS Office publication Community Policing Defined.

AHTF OVERVIEW

The COPS Anti-Heroin Task Force Program (AHTF) is a competitive grant program for state law enforcement agencies in states with high per capita levels of primary treatment admissions for heroin, fentanyl, carfentanil, and other opioids.

Anticipated program outcomes:

- increased collaboration with federal agencies;
- increased analytical reporting;
- increased information-sharing among participating agencies;
- increased number and efficiency of investigations;
- increased percentage of investigations resulting in arrests, referrals, prosecutions, and ultimately convictions;
- increased knowledge and use of community policing principles;
- increased number of drug-endangered children identified;
- increased number of and size of drug seizures.
