

Volunteer Engagement for American Indian and Alaska Native Missing Persons Cases

A special project under the COPS
Office's Collaborative Reform
Initiative Technical Assistance
Center (CRI-TAC)

To help address the missing or murdered Indigenous persons crisis, the International Association of Chiefs of Police (IACP) worked with the COPS Office to develop a training on volunteer programs in tribal law enforcement agencies. This training supports tribal agencies in starting and managing volunteer programs to support missing persons cases. Building upon the IACP's Volunteers in Police Service curriculum, this training includes a workshop geared toward tribal leadership and an eight-hour training for tribal law enforcement and other staff who will develop the program and manage volunteers.

For more information, and to request the program be delivered at your location, go to:

<https://cops.usdoj.gov/cri-tac>

