

Collaborative Reform Initiative for Technical Assistance

Field-Driven Solutions
for Alaskan Law Enforcement Agencies and the Communities they Serve

BY THE FIELD, FOR THE FIELD

COPS
Community Oriented Policing Services
U.S. Department of Justice

The COPS Office provides support, resources, and assistance to law enforcement agencies nationwide by using a “by the field, for the field” model. Solutions are designed by subject matter experts from the field in a collaborative manner with the agency to address their unique needs. Customizing the technical assistance for each agency ensures that the assistance is timely, relevant, and field-driven. The program is a public service and offered at no cost to the requesting agency.

“ The COPS Office is committed to supporting law enforcement in Alaska and the communities they serve in a way that is relevant to them and respectful of local control. The Collaborative Reform Initiative for Technical Assistance is the kind of program that can make good on that commitment.”

— COPS OFFICE DIRECTOR PHIL KEITH

“ The goal of Collaborative Reform is to provide technical assistance to state, local, territorial, and tribal law enforcement agencies that will enhance their organizational, public safety, crime reduction, and community policing effectiveness while maintaining local control and accountability for effective policing in their communities.”
