

THE PRESIDENT'S TASK FORCE ON 21ST CENTURY POLICING

Melissa Jones

Melissa Jones is a Senior Program Officer with the Boston office of the Local Initiatives Support Corporation, one of the nation's largest community development support organizations. She supports low-income neighborhoods throughout Boston in engaging residents and other community leaders to develop comprehensive Quality of Life Investment Plans that guide economic development, education, safety and health initiatives. In this role, Melissa has also supported community-police partnerships citywide, including several that have earned national recognition for how they have linked policing with neighbor organizing and problem property abatement, yielding results in the form of sustained crime reduction as well as enhanced community-police trust. Previously, Melissa served as the Community Transformation Director at Youth Uprising, East Oakland's largest youth development center, and in city government in the Cities of Oakland and Alameda. Melissa holds a Masters in Public Administration from California State University, East Bay and a BA from Northeastern University. She is a Doctoral Candidate in Governance and Policy Analysis at United Nations University-MERIT and Maastricht Graduate School of Governance.
